TO A HEAD OF LORD BYRON.

Some men their smiling faces endow
With power to please as soon as seen,
With charm of hyacinthine brow.

Such power was thine. Each story told,
With comment from thy burning eye,
By lips of such a delicate mold.

Claimed immortality.

Strange, radiant sorcerer! Thy spell
On man or maid had equal might
To make all heaven look dark as hell.

Or almost blinding bright.

For us who, in a colder age,
Aver thy lines want many a grace,
Thy well if e'er th' impassioned page
We see thy proud young face.

Then, gallant heart, to shipwreck tost
By the world's madness and thine own,
We hear once more thy accents lost.
And thy restless tone.

ON THE SNAGS.

A firm, quick step sounded behind her on the hard country road, and though she well knew whose step it was, and her heart thrilled and her breath came quickly, she only turned her head nonchalantly and said flippantly:

"Oh! It is you?"

"Yes, it is me. You knew it was me.

Are you going to throw me over?"

And the big fellow's voice shook and his fair face flushed with pain.

"Throw you over! Gentlemen never use slang—to ladies."

"You know what I mean. Jean, are you aware that you refused to dance every dance with me today?"

"I really forget; my memory, you know."

"One moment, if you please, and then I have done. Is it yes or no?"

"Hunt, don't be stupid. You know I hate to be remarked on."

"And so do I, and I will not again be subjected to the remarks I heard today.
Once more, is it yes or no?"

"Well, no, then, if you press the point."

"Be it so. And, with a grave bow,
Hunt Ashley turned and was gone.

Pretty Jean Inslow was stunned for a moment, then swallowed a gulp in her throat as she battled to the front.

"Let him go. If a man is such a fool
he can't see—pshaw! nobody cares."

And then, to prove that nobody did care, she sat down and cried until her pretty eyes looked like a stewed ferret, and her pretty little nose had the appearance of an apoplectic lobster.

"There's one thing morally certain," she continued—"of all things in the wide world there's nothing I hate like men."

This last remark was made out loud,
and intended for the benefit of the trees and the wide-eyed purple violets; but,
alas! it reached the ears of a tall fellow, with blond hair, who stood just on the other side of the blossoming hedge.

He gave a slight whistle and compressed his lips a little firmer as he strode off under the low, drooping trees, without once looking behind.

"Well, I have done it now. I'm glad he heard me say I hated him. Nobody cares. I'll go to the dance tonight with Phil, and flirt too."

And Jean, with her head very high in the air, tried to persuade herself that she really didn't care.

Hunt Ashley went on down the road through the shaded village street and stopped at the gate of a vine wreathed cottage. A black eye, pleasant faced girl was tying up some of the vines on trellises.

"Bess," he said, helping her twine up a golden lipped jasmine, "will you go to the dance with me tonight?"

"What? Where's Jean?"

"Quarrelled."

"Ah! I see. I'm invited for cat's paw, eh?"

"No. I asked you because I did not wish to go alone."

"Well, all right, I'll go. The fact is, I've quarrelled with Phil—and I'd rather go with you than not."

Jean and Bess were the two prettiest girls in the village, and the two best dancers besides, and that night when Jean and Phil appeared Bess and Hunt had just finished the first set.

Each took in the situation at a glance.

Bess and Jean called each other hard names under their breath and hated each other in a small minded, womanly way intensely. The men stood and eyed each other fiercely and pulled their mustaches, and looked as if it would give them the most exquisite pleasure to annihilate each other.

"Phil," said Jean, "come out on the piazza with me."

"The piazza? Oh, certainly! But where are they going?"

"Following us, it seems."

Close as their own shadows Hunt and Bess stuck to them, and though there were a great many tender things uttered on both sides, there was certainly not very much scope for so called flirtation.

"Bess," presently called Jean, "are you going boating tomorrow?"

"Yes, perhaps."

"Miss Bess is going in my boat. Whose boat do you grace, Miss Jean? (Confound that gibbering idiot!)"

"Oh, Phil's, of course," leaning tenderly toward him. ("I hate Bess Miller!
His boat, indeed!")

And the next morning the gayly painted boats rocked over the heart of the pulsing river as the stalwart arms of the oarsmen rowed against the gurgling rapids; then, throwing down their oars, they lazily drifted back with the current.

But the two boats Jean and Bess were in still shot up the stream.

"Hunt, let us go back. We'll be on the snags presently!"

"Yes, perhaps."

found that gibbering idiot!)"

their heads like gaunt, devoured alligators waiting for their prey.

At high water the boats would have cleared them easily, but now they lurked
a hidden death beneath the throbbing water.

Suddenly Hunt Ashley's boat shot ahead, dashing the warning snags.

"Madman, what do you mean? If life is so cheap, you're welcome to the death you covet. Jean, come into my boat. I command you," and Hunt's voice had a ring in it Jean had never heard before.

"Command, indeed!" shouted Phil
hoarsely. "You are pretty richly freighted. What more would you have?"

"Jean."

Then the two bright glancing boats clashed, and over they turned, and with two tremendous cries, "Hunt! Phil!"
down among the driftwood the two couples went, but together—for Hunt had sprang to Jean and Phil to Bess—
and both were battling for the vine covered banks.

As each one deposited his dripping load safely under the low spreading trees, an embarrassed silence fell on the qu岸.

Hunt was the first to break it.

"Hunt, Phil, the last time a confounded mistake somewhere. These girls have been playing us a nice game truly."

"No such thing. It wasn't us," and Bess face rivalled the trumpet flowers
over her head.

"We'll get the boats righted now, and settle that question later," and with a wicked laugh in his eyes, Phil walked off to where his painted Bess was re-flicking bottom upward, among the vines and creepers.

It did not take twenty minutes to get the tipsy shells afloat.

With the airs of "conquering heroes"
the young men stood by their respective crafts.

"Choose your boats, young ladies!"
Indignant chorus under the trees:

"To say men don't take advantage.
Oh, this is too much! To make us choose! How mean!"

A whispered colloquy:
"Bess, you choose first."

"Oh, no! Jean, you choose."

The young men stood regarding them with owlish gravity.

"You will catch cold if you do not hasten," from the boats.

"They might save our pride. I'm awfully chilly, Bess." (Sneeze.)

"So am I, oh! (Two—three sneezes.)"

Then Mr. Hunt Ashley, with horrible visions of cold and catarrh, walked up to Miss Jean Inslow and pronouncing the two little hands in one of his, and en circling the drenched, trembling little

"Now will you come?"

"Yes, Hunt." And Meekness walked obediently to her cockle-shell namesake.

"I wouldn't have done it, Bess," murmured Phil, after he had performed the same operation. "if you had come yourself."

Miss Meekness Number Two followed the lead of Meekness Number One, but gave one last feminine clasp.

And tomorrow was come, and Bess
tripped over to see Jean.

Marvelous, what friends these two had become! There was never such a thing in the world as a cold—never!

"Hunt! Have you seen anybody today?"

"No. Have you seen some one?"

"No." (Intelligible very.) "Oh, there's yours at the gate!"

"Oh, and yours up the road."

"Phil and I have concluded on a double wedding tomorrow. We've waited as long as we intend to wait, and I've bespoken the parson for 12 tomorrow; so, Jean, put your hands in mine—you don't hate me now, do you?"

And tell me my wife will make my tea
tomorrow evening."

And pretty, coquettish Jean said
"Yes."

Coquettes make the most submissive wives, they say, and, moreover, she said a great many other foolish things to that big, enraptured fellow, who fell down, figuratively speaking, and kissed the prints of her tiny boots.

And Phil and Bess under the amber lipped jasmine bower had their own little explanations.

"You said you would never ask me again, Phil. You swore it."

"And did I, sweetheart?"

"No—not but somehow."

"But somehow I did, didn't I? Bless those deathly old snags!"—a sound which generally follows the meeting of four lips—"Did you know that Hunt and Jean are going to be married tomorrow?"

"Impossible!"

"But they are, for I heard them ask the parson, and Bess, I asked the parson too, and the parson's wife heard us, and she's the veriest old gossip you know, and it's all over the village by this time; and here's the ring and I won't risk any more delays."

And the ring fitted so nicely, and was so becoming to the little brown hand that Bess said well, if Jean did she would. And Jean did, and so Bess did.

Male Mortality in New Orleans.

There seems to be something pretty serious the matter with the men of New Orleans. There are 15,000 more women than men there; nevertheless five men die to every four women. The trouble comes between the ages of twenty-one and fifty. Between the ages of thirty and fifty the ratio of mortality is nearly two men to one woman. Among whites and blacks the same curious state of things prevails. The doctors cannot explain why it happens so, but it is evident that there is going to be a corner in males in New Orleans unless some one finds out. The excess of women began after the war, and has been increasing ever since, and especially during the last twelve years.—Atlanta Constitution

International Boat Racing.

It is possible that there will be an international rowing match arranged before the close of the rowing season of 1892. For some time past an informal correspondence has been carried on between the president of the Oxford University Boatclub and the rowing men of both Harvard and Yale colleges in the United States. The medium of communication was Mr. Chase Mellin, an old Brahmin sculler, who is at present residing in the states. The idea was to bring Oxford against the winners of the Harvard-Yale match. Harvard has always expressed a willingness to ratify an international match if such a thing was possible, and the only hitch likely to occur were the locale and the time.

In an interview with R. C. Lehmann, the coach of the Oxford crew, that gentleman says:

"The Oxford University Boatclub is very anxious to arrange a match with the winner of the Yale-Harvard match this year. Informal communications have, I believe, come from the other side of the Atlantic, and have been answered by Mr. Fletcher, who is now president of the O. U. B. C."

Mr. Lehmann thought that a race might be arranged on the river Thames between Putney and Mortlake, in the month of September, and that

SONOMA, JULY 23, 1892.

H. H. GRANGER - EDITOR

THE NOISOME PESTILENCE OF THAT DITCH.

ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE:

In your last issue you call the attention of the Sonoma people regarding the great danger that lurks from the open ditch running along the entire First-street West, which has been converted into a sewer by private parties, and whose noisome pestilence is the dread of the entire community. Some days ago a petition was made asking the Board of City Trustees to flush the ditch with a view to abating the nuisance, and the carelessness of some parties, and never thinking for a moment that the city has not a plethoric treasure for wasting its money in a work which is not necessary if the Board insists, as it should, in enforcing the second section of Ordinance No. 24. During the winter rains the water runs so abundantly in the ditch that it would remain perfectly clean for the summer if the said private parties would not flow it with the refuse of privy vaults, Chinese laundries, wine cellars, etc.

It seems that the petitioners are endeavoring to compel our honorable Trustees to construct a sewer in that very same long ditch at a cost the city cannot afford and which would be a burden for the taxpayers. The City Fathers ought to bear in mind that they do not manage their own money but that which they receive from the people for improvements for the benefit of the whole community, and not to benefit a few people. It is well known that in the proposed improvement but two or three property-owners will be benefited, and these receive enormous rents from tenants who have paid for the buildings ten times over.

No, dear Editor, our people should allow the Trustees to persist in their noble efforts to preserve the public health, and as you have said to cast aside all petty spite and selfish interests and cooperate with them in the welfare of our city. The Board at its last special meeting did right in proposing the first petition out of order, and as for the second one, no attention should be given, as it is quite sure that no one of the petitioners, excepting of course the interested parties, consider its real meaning—an unfair, unnecessary expense to all taxpayers. No city in California, except Sonoma, presents the unsightly spectacle of having Chinese laundries in the very heart of its population. Could not the City Fathers follow the example of other communities and fame an ordinance to remove the same from the Plaza at least? If the Board attends to this suggestion, without listening to the growling of selfish people, they not only would put a remedy to the evil, but would confirm the opinion that they hold the governing power for the sake of its constituents and the growth of our city. The Trustees ought to remember what Grover Cleveland has said: "A public office is a public trust." Now, Mr. Editor, that diphtheria is stalking abroad in our midst any vaccination on the part of our City Fathers would be criminal and punishable. The filth of every description that for some years has been flowing in the open ditch should be stopped, also the Chinese laundries in the heart of our town, and that right away.

The INDEX-TRIBUNE has always encouraged the progress of Sonoma and will at present we hope urge this matter in union with our Trustees, leaving aside private considerations, for improving the sanitary condition of our town. Our present cases of diphtheria should be a warning and we may well remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Yours Sincerely,
A TAXPAYER.

DIPHTHERIA.

Its Restriction and Prevention—Useful Information.

Dr. J. R. Laine, Secretary of the State Board of Health, recommends the following precautions against the spread of that terribly fatal malady, diphtheria:

1. Whenever diphtheria is known to be in the neighborhood, all children with sore throats should be kept apart from other children until a competent physician has determined that the sore throat is not diphtheria.

2. A person with diphtheria should be placed in a room in the upper story of the house if convenient, as remote as possible from direct communication with others, and access should be denied to all but the necessary attendants. All superfluous furniture, including carpets, curtains, clothing and books, should be removed from the apartment. There should be free ventilation without drafts.

3. A card with DIPHTHERIA printed in large type should be placed in a conspicuous position on the house, and no child should be allowed to enter.

4. No food or drink that has been exposed to the atmosphere of the sick-room should be used by well persons, and the dishes used in the sick-room should be washed separately.

5. Neither the bedclothes nor the patient's body linen should be mixed with other soiled clothes or admitted to the general wash until they are first disinfected.

6. No person recently recovered from diphtheria should attend school, church, or other public assemblies until declared by a competent physician to be no longer capable of transmitting the contagion.

7. Under no circumstances should a public funeral be held of a person dead of diphtheria. Neither must children be permitted to attend. Upon this point health officials cannot be too firm and unyielding. All personal considerations and sentiments must be subordinated to considerations of public safety.

FASCINATION.

Why so Many Ladies Who Should be Attractive Fail to Please—A Brilliant Woman Reveals the Secret.

"Dress is everything."

"Is it? Some beautiful women cannot be improved by a dress, no matter how artistic it may be made."

The speakers were two lady reporters for society papers. They had attended balls, receptions and parties for years. They had studied the effects of costumes, the lines of beauty, and had faithfully written upon them in the papers they represented. They were masters in their art and yet they differed.

"You cannot prove your assertion by any lady of high standing and authority."

"I can," replied her companion. "Within two days I will show you an interview with the leading woman on dress of America." And the two friends parted.

Last Wednesday they met at the same place, when, producing a neatly-written manuscript, the lady read the following remarkable interview:

"Mrs. Annie Jennings-Miller is the acknowledged authority in America upon the subject of dress. An attractive woman herself, she knows how to render other women attractive in the highest degree. I sought an interview; it was granted, and I give you the results."

"Do you think, Mrs. Miller, that women are made more attractive by their dress?"

"That depends upon what you mean by attractive."

"Pleasing, fascinating if you choose—more charming to men and other women."

"A simply beautiful woman is seldom attractive as a stupid one never. It is the soul, the fire, the brilliancy, which render women attractive."

"Till about that, but what makes women brilliant?"

"A sunny, brightness and good health. Did you ever see a sickly woman able to entertain a dinner party of bright people? On the other hand, did you ever know a cultivated and refined woman, overflowing with animal life and spirits, who was not fascinating?"

"So you believe perfect health is the secret of fascination, do you?"

"Most certainly. Artistic dressing is proper, fine, curves attractive, but life, such as comes from healthy throbbing blood, is alone fascinating. It is a great mistake, however, to think that health is preserved by dress alone. Women must have good food, freedom from care, and a good friend in need."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Some assistance, physically. All women feel depressed at times, and all pleasure seems gone out of life. On all such occasions, and indeed whenever blue or worn out, she needs help. I know, because I have been in that condition myself."

"And what do you do when in that condition?"

"One thing, and one thing only. I am assisted by the best friend that any woman ever had. It is Warner's Safe Cure. I never it, and I have good reason to speak as I do. You think I am a perfectly healthy woman, so I am, but I take several bottles of this great cure every year, just as I take my food. I care in the secret of this amazing food. As you know, there are certain times when every woman needs assistance. At such times, and before such times, there is so far as I know, but one thing that can help, and that is the great cure I have named."

"I bade Mrs. Miller a reluctant goodbye, for I felt that I had met a woman who knew women, what their trials and troubles were, and what they required."

The phenomenal success of Ayer's Sarsaparilla started into existence a host of competitors. This, of course, was to be expected; but the effect has been to demonstrate the superior merits of Dr. Ayer's preparation by a constantly increasing demand for it.

Give your pet dogs or cats Simons Liver Regulator, when sick—it will cure them.

NEW TO-DAY.

THE FACT

What AYER'S Sarsaparilla cures OTHERS OF Scrupulous Diseases, Eruptions, Boils, Pimples, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, and Catarrh should be convincing that the same course of treatment will cure you. All that has been said of the wonderful cures effected by the use of

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

during the past 30 years, testifies to its efficacy to-day. It is, in every sense, The Superior Medicine. Its curative properties, strength, effect, and flavor are always the same; and for whatever blood diseases AYER'S Sarsaparilla is taken, they yield to this treatment. When you ask for don't be induced to purchase any of the worthless substitutes, which are mostly mixtures of the cheapest ingredients, contain no sarsaparilla, have no uniform standard of appearance, flavor, or effect, are purifiers in name only, and are offered to you because there is more profit in selling them. The opening of the Public School has been postponed to Monday, August 8th. The Trustees have taken this step with a view of finding out how far the diphtheria, which promises to become epidemic in this vicinity, has progressed.

Real estate agent Twing reports the sale of the Cleve ranch near Agua Caliente to Chas. C. Fisher of Neff City, Kansas. Also, thirteen acres of land in the El Verano tract to M. P. Jock. Both parties will engage extensively in raising poultry for the San Francisco market. Mr. Fisher's family will shortly arrive from Kansas and join him in his new home.

The Democratic County Central Committee meets to-day in Santa Rosa to make arrangements for the coming campaign, which promises to be a spirited one. Geo. W. Sparks, the member from Sonoma, will not be able to attend as he has to conduct an auction sale of cooerage on the Spencer ranch. He has given Hon. Robt. Howe his proxy, who will attend the meeting and take part in its deliberations.

The Swiss residents of Sonoma and vicinity will celebrate the 601st anniversary of the independence of Switzerland in this place on Sunday, September 4th. There will be martial music, a picnic, orations, dancing and other features, which will be wound up with a grand ball in the evening. Orations will be delivered in English, German and Swiss by Messrs. Robt. Poppe, Dr. Carl Walliser and V. Poppina.

Dr. L. B. Lawrence, who has been practicing medicine at Smith River, Del Norte county, for the past two years, will return to Sonoma with his family the latter part of next month. The Dr's health has become so poor of late that he has been obliged to give up his practice. Upon his return to Sonoma he will make some improvements on Terrace Hill, his home in this place, where his family will take up their residence, after which he contemplates a trip to the Sandwich Islands in the hopes that a climatic change may restore him to health.

Henri Esche, who is engaged in erecting a building for hotel purposes at Schellville, a few miles southeast of Sonoma, fell from a ladder, last Wednesday morning, and was precipitated to the ground, falling a distance of twelve feet. He was knocked unconscious and lay as if dead for some time. Dr. Davis was sent for and applied restoratives, which soon revived the injured man. Upon examination it was found that no bones were broken and unless hurt internally nothing serious will result from the fall.

"CURFEW WILL NOT RING."

George W. Bruggy Granted Another Reprieve.

Carroll Cook, of counsel for George Bruggy, the Windsor murderer, sentenced to be hanged to-day at Santa Rosa, appeared before Judge McKenna of the United States Circuit Court, San Francisco, last Thursday and secured a writ of habeas corpus directing Sheriff Mulgrew to produce Bruggy in the Circuit Court on the 26th of July, (last Monday.) The condemned man was taken before his Honor on that day and a hearing was postponed until Thursday, the prisoner in the meantime being remanded back into the custody of Sheriff Mulgrew.

On Thursday, Bruggy with his counsel again appeared before Judge McKenna, who decided against him and he would have been hanged to-day had not Governor Markham again intervened with another reprieve of thirty days to give counsel for Bruggy a chance to bring the case before the Supreme Court for final decision.

Arrested and Discharged.

Victor Jansen and John McKinnon, farmers living in the western part of town, were arrested last Monday on complaint of W. F. Baker for damming up and obstructing a water course which has its source on the Gen. Vallejo place. On Wednesday last the case was tried by Recorder Cheney without a jury. After hearing the testimony the court, without permitting any argument, decided that no case had been made out and that the ordinance under which the arrest was made is unconstitutional upon the ground that it conflicted with the general law, and the defendants were discharged from custody. It appears that Jansen and McKinnon, who are neighbors of Baker, had dammed up the water course in question for irrigating their gardens and deprived complainant of all benefit from said stream for watering his stock and hence the arrest. The ordinance which has been pronounced unconstitutional by the Recorder is numbered 24 and is the one that the City Trustees are now endeavoring to enforce to place the town in a better sanitary condition and prevent the spread of diphtheria.

The Suicide.

George Bruggy, who committed suicide in San Francisco last week, was well known to many people in this valley. His wife is the daughter of Chas. Baetige, formerly of this place. The unfortunate man kept a feed stable on Washington street, San Francisco, and was doing a fair business and his domestic affairs were of the most happy kind. His relatives are at a loss to know the reasons for his rash act, which must have been committed in a fit of temporary insanity. Walter T. Boardwell, at one time a resident of Sonoma, is a brother-in-law of deceased.

The will of Mr. Brugge, which was filed for probate in San Francisco, last Monday, bequeaths half of his property to his wife, Amelia, and the income of the other half so long as she remains unmarried. In case of her marriage or death, then the said half is to go to his two children, share and share alike. The estate is valued at $4,255.

The Ewell Ranch Sold.

The Ewell ranch, comprising 36 acres and improvements, which was recently offered for sale at public auction in this place, has become the property of W. A. McCauley of San Francisco. The sale of this property came up for confirmation before Judge Crawford of Santa Rosa last Monday. There were several bidders present. McCauley's bid of $6,500, without the fruit crop, was the best and was accepted by the Judge. As the crop is estimated to be worth $1,500 the sale will net the estate $8,000, the exact sum for which it was appraised. The sale was effected through the real estate agencies of D. H. Twing and Gaman & Lyon.

Death of Nancy M. Sneed.

Mrs. Nancy M. Sneed, for many years a resident of this valley, died at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Agnew last Wednesday morning at the ripe old age of 84 years, five months and seven days. The deceased lady was a native of Kentucky. The funeral took place from the Agnew residence on Thursday afternoon and was largely attended.

Lena, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Jansen, died of diphtheria Friday morning. Although only sick two days the dreadful disease fastened so firmly upon its little victim that no help could release its deadly clutch.

Chicken-cholera and pips, prevented and cured by Simmons Liver Regulator.

A Young Cannibal.

A patient at the Feeble Minded Home, a lad about fourteen years of age, named Gus, made a savage assault on a ten-year-old boy known by the name of Willie, one day last week, and attempted to eat his head off. He threw the smaller boy down and before assistance arrived succeeded in biting out several pieces of flesh from the head of the other youngster, who in the meanwhile yelled lustily for help. The injured lad was kindly cared for by Dr. Osborne and was sufficiently well to be able to return to the home of his parents in San Francisco on last Monday afternoon's train.

Petaluma Fair.

The annual fair at Petaluma of the Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society will open this year on August 29th, and continue to September 3d, (inclusive.) Many new features will be introduced this season, notably among these are bicycle races for amateur wheelmen, which is bound to attract to the fair grounds bicycle riders from all over the State to contest for the prizes. While the fair is in progress the Donahue railway company will carry school children for 25 cents for the round trip from any and all points in Sonoma and Marin counties. Children will be admitted to the fair free. The Exposition promises to be more attractive this season than ever before. Teachers in Sonoma Valley should send at once to Thos. MacLay, the Secretary, for tickets and railway certificates for school children.

R. P. Hill, District Deputy, left for Healdsburg last Tuesday to install the officers of Sotoyome Parlor of Native Sons at that place.

A gang of Sonoma painters applied a coat of paint to the iron bridge at this place last Tuesday, adding greatly to its appearance.

A social dance will take place at the school house in South Los Guillicos next Friday. The proceeds will be used for the purchase of a piano.

A rattlesnake, three feet nine inches in length with twenty-two rattles and a button, caused quite a commotion on the Williams ranch last Saturday. Harry Weise, whose courage is only exceeded by his good looks, with the aid of a club dispatched his snake in short order.

A full-fledged threshing machine, at work on the Hamilton place and the first seen in this neck of the woods for many a long day, was quite a novelty and caused a great commotion among the dwellers in the vicinity of the Allindas Gardens. It was a sight not often seen and the number of visitors attracted to the scene of operations eclipsed Sells Bros. big show of two years ago.

A serious accident occurred near South Los Guillicos last Saturday. Mr. Jones, employed on the Hodge farm, was out driving when the horse, a spirited one, became unmanageable and ran away, throwing Mr. Jones to the ground seriously injuring him and killing the horse instantly. A physician was immediately summoned from Santa Rosa and although the injuries received by Mr. Jones are quite serious they fortunately will not prove fatal.

PARTY AT MRS. M. A. JOHNSON'S.

On Friday evening of last week Brookside, the residence of Mrs. M. A. Johnson, was the scene of a pleasant gathering of young people, who had assembled for the purpose of attending a surprise party given in honor of Mrs. Johnson's handsome and accomplished daughter Birdie. It had the tendency of bringing out all the beauty and youthful pride of Sonoma Valley. Wonderful taste was displayed by loving hearts and willing hands in converting the house into a bower of flowers, ferns and smilax. At 12 o'clock the guests proceeded to the dining room where a delicious supper was served, which was highly appreciated by every one. In the middle of the room hung a large hanging lamp entwined with ferns, smilax and maiden's hair, under which was spread a most tempting banquet table. The principal feature of the evening was dancing, for which a large platform was constructed in the center of the garden, where nature in her own beauty formed the main decorations. The grounds were illuminated with hanging lamps and Chinese lanterns. At the head of the platform was a beautiful arch composed of fern branches, ivy branches, flowers and maderia vines, beneath which was the piano whose sweet harmonious sounds echoed in the still clear air.

Shortly after the playing of games commenced and continued until refreshments were announced, when each took their place at the dining table, where they were served with ice cream, cake, candy, nuts and iced lemonade, after which the birthday cake, containing a sum of money, was cut by each of the children. They stay multitudes when they are the product of neglect of incipient disease. A "slight cold," a fit of indigestion, biliousness, or constipation each or any of these "minor ailments" advance in many cases with "league-destriving strides." Give them a healthy, early defeat with Hestett's Stomach Bitters and avert the danger. Alleviate an alarming ailment, rebuke the man who informed him that he had "only a cold." "Only a cold," repeated the doctor. "What would ye have—the plague?" Rheumatism and la grippe are easily extinguishable at the start. Why then allow them to get up a full head of steam? Put on the brakes with the Bitters. The gentle warmth which this superb medicine diffuses the system, the impetus it gives to the circulation of the blood, the soothing and strengthening effect upon the nervous system, specially recommended to the feeble and sick. 'Tis the great specific for malaria.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1892.

Sunstroke Stops the Wedding of 75 and 25.
A marriage was interrupted Thursday night by the groom becoming suddenly overcome with the heat and he has been taken to his hotel, where he has been confined to his bed ever since.

The groom in question is Mr. W. S. Fowler who boards at the Enterprise hotel. Until a short while ago he conducted a livery stable on East Market street, but retired about a year ago with a comfortable fortune. Mr. Fowler is a widower, seventy-five years old, and has several grown children. A short while ago he met Miss Lillie Townsend, a young woman twenty-five years of age, who is employed by J. Bacon & Sons at the glove counter.

The courtship did not last long till the engagement was announced. Mr. Fowler's children, it seems, objected strongly to the marriage and did everything in their power to break off the match. They were unsuccessful, however, and June 15, the day set for the marriage, arrived. The wedding was to take place where Miss Townsend has boarded for several years. Everything was in readiness at the time appointed—the guests, the minister and the happy couple.

Just before the time for the ceremony Mr. Fowler became very faint and he has fallen back for the support of one of the guests. He soon lost consciousness and was taken to the Enterprise hotel in a carriage, where he was put to bed and the doctor summoned. His condition was found not to be serious, but he was suffering from a slight case of sunstroke.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

An Imprisoned Genius.

Alberto Lopez, who was taken to Yuma recently to serve a two years' term for burglary gave his personal effects to his friends about the jail. Deputy Barry was presented with a fascimile of the Episcopal church made out of pasteboard. Lopez could see the church from one of the jail windows, and he reproduced it almost perfectly. He borrowed a knife from Deputy Sheridan with which he cut up the pasteboard, and then made paste from flour with which to stick the pieces together. It is a piece of workmanlike and proud. The great production of Lopez while confined in jail here is a reproduction of the magnificent Merchants' exchange building in Guadalajara. The entire affair is constructed of paper. On the inside of the building are the stairways, etc., each perfect in its construction. The prisoner must be possessed of a memory much stronger than most men are, to remember every detail of that large structure for a number of years. However much genius the man possessed, he has made bad use of it.—Phoenix Herald.

Troublesome Seals.

The salmon fishermen down the river and bay are having trouble this spring from the seals, as usual. These pests are multiplying rather than decreasing and are causing great losses to the weirs. While the seals of the arctic regions have the reputation of being slow, stupid animals, hunters killing them with clubs, those on the Maine coast are the sharpest game to be found. They will go in and out of the salmon weirs, either by force or strategy, and eat all the fish they want. They are very hard to get a shot at, and when hit sink to the bottom, the carcass thus being lost to the gunner. One fisherman remarked on a recent Saturday that there was a small fortune in store for the man who would invent a trap that would catch seals and hold them. The bounty upon them doesn't seem to do a bit of good.—Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

No Buyer for Raleigh's Trough House.

Sir Walter Raleigh's Irish home in Youghall, County Cork, which belonged to the late Sir John Pope Hennessy, M. P., was put up for sale by Messrs. E. & H. Lumsley, in the Auction mart, Tomkenhouse yard. The house is a fine specimen of Elizabethan architecture. It was there that Sir Walter smoked the first pipe of tobacco in Ireland and received an unexpected bath from a faithful servant maid, who, on seeing the blue smoke emerging from his master's mouth and curling around his head, thought Sir Walter was falling a victim to spontaneous combustion and threw a pail of cold water over him to extinguish the conflagration. Only £1,250 was bid for the property, which was accordingly bought in by the auctioneer, who said he could not think of selling a historical mansion like it for such a figure.—London Telegraph.

Telephone from Paris to Bordeaux.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the new telephone line between Paris and Bordeaux was opened. Complimentary messages were exchanged between the presidents of the chambers of commerce of both cities, and the minister of commerce, and the mayor of Bordeaux. The telephone works exceedingly well, every word being clearly heard. Before concluding the Elysee telephone was hatched on and a complimentary message sent through from Bordeaux to President Carnot, to which he replied in suitable terms.—Galignani Messenger.

Snow in June, but None in Winter.

Persons returning from the hills report that a foot of snow fell Wednesday. It extended down within 2,000 feet of the plains. A shower of "round" snow fell in the vineyards between Fresno and the base of the Sierra Nevada mountains, where no snow fell at any time last winter.—Fresno Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

W. C. Crawford is now, at the age of eighty-six, living in destitution at Alvarado, Tex. He is the sole survivor of the band of patriots who signed the declaration of Texas independence at Washington, on the Brazos river, March 2, 1836.

During a masked ball at Covent Garden theater thieves made off with valuable diamonds and jewelry which they are said to have cut from the ladies' dresses.

but I couldn't help it. Everything went wrong with me, and I thought I hadn't a friend in the world; dyspepsia caused this, and for months I couldn't eat anything, and just suffered in misery till I used Sulphur Bitters. Three bottles cured me.—D. Lewis, 22 Bowdoin street Boston, Mass.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light-house.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Trecoet are keepers of the Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a dread Cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain. She was taken to Detroit and there she was a mere "handful of bones." Then she tried for King's New Discovery Cough Syrup, and in two days she was completely cured. "August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DEDERICK, Saugerties, New York.

W. B. Utsey, St. George's, S. C., writes: I have used your August Flower for Dyspepsia and find it an excellent remedy.
